

Cox College's Associate of Science in Radiography (ASR) program prepares students for American Registry for Radiologic Technologists (ARRT) certification exam and registration. ARRT certification is the minimum requirement to practice radiography at most facilities in most states. Some states may have additional licensing requirements, provided here. Licensing requirements vary by state/territory and relocating could impact whether you will meet eligibility requirements for licensure. Employers, state licensing agencies, and federal regulators all consider an ARRT credential to be verification that students met rigorous professional standards. Currently, the state of Missouri does not have additional licensing requirements.

If questions remain after reviewing the information provided, contact your program chair. While Cox College can provide initial guidance, it is ultimately your responsibility to continually check with the state/territory where you intend to seek licensure to confirm all licensing/certification requirements.
